Dear East Drayton Parish Council,

To Whom It May Concern:

You and your community are being invited to take part in an academic study that is being led by researchers at the University of Portsmouth. We are helping to distribute a link to the survey due to our connections with communities in the East Midlands.

The aim of this study is to better understand public opinions about geological hydrogen storage in the East Midlands. Don't worry if you are unfamiliar with this term, they will provide you with more details within the study.

They are particularly interested to hear from people living in communities affiliated with current or historical oil and gas extraction, but anyone can participate provided you are aged 18 or above and a resident of the East Midlands region. We are hoping that you can forward this email and the instructions below to your communities to ensure that as wide a response as possible can be gathered. If you have a website, facebook page or other social media please feel free to publicise that way as well.

Nobody is obliged to take part in this study, participation is entirely voluntary, and you can withdraw at any time. At the end of the study, the respondent has the option to enter a prize draw with a chance to win one of five £100 Amazon vouchers.

They need responses to this survey before the end of December.

Please click the link, if you are interested in taking part.

Kind regards,

The EMStor Team
